This item is printed on demand - Print on Demand Neuware - Master's Thesis from the year 2011 in the subject Business economics - Business Management, Corporate Governance, grade: Distinction, Cass Business School, course: MBA, language: English, comment: Strategic Change Management , abstract: The purpose of this report is to detail the background, methodology and the findings of a pilot study that was undertaken to assess what constitutes an organization's capacity to undergo change. The study has been sponsored by a boutique management consulting firm based in London, which is looking at new opportunities for its business development. However, the study has far reaching consequences and tries to provide answers to why some organizations are better at change, while others are not. In spite of all research and models, 70% of all change initiatives fail to deliver as planned originally. This might leave one wondering why it is that consulting firms have little or no problem to change while manufacturing companies have huge problems even undertaking minor change initiatives The organization structure does play a part, but what about an organization's ability or culture; doesn't that play a part...
