Not illustrated. 1914 Excerpt: .words of presentation and acceptance by Mrs. Ross and President Thach, of the college, this tablet was unveiled. Elsewhere on the campus was a tablet reciting that here was a building of the old college converted into a Confederate hospital. Moving toward the heart of the city, the procession formed about a great bowlder whereon a tablet recited how on this site Miss Bettie Dowdell, simultaneously with the raising of the first Confederate flag at Montgomery, then the capital of the Confederacy, raised a second flag. It was a lovely incident of the unveiling that this was by another Bettie Dowdell, a descendant of the first. The last of the five or six tablets unveiled was near the Atlanta and West Point Railroad station, where Jefferson Davis, then en route to Montgomery to be inaugurated, reviewed and addressed the Auburn Guards, perhaps the most famous of Alabama s Confederate companies. In honor of the noble work of the ladies of the Semmes Chapter, the Veteran has secured the leading facts of this great day of patriotism, with illustrations from photographs of a few of the more notable unveilings. On Saturday, April 29, this history was memorialized and made the occasion of a great celebration of the past. The First Vice President General of the U. D. C, Mrs. B. B. Ross, the gracious and accomplished wife of Professor Ross, of the Polytechnic, herself the daughter of one of the famous families of the South, was the...
